SPECIALIST SERVICES THAT CAN HELP

SELF HARM

It can be difficult to know how to talk to your friends, family or a health professional about self-harm. But many people feel more supported and less alone after talking to someone. Self-harm is most often described as a way to express or cope with emotional distress and may be linked to bad experiences that are happening now, or in the past.

Some of the reasons that people may self-harm include:

- coping with emotional distress
- trying to feel in control
- a way of punishing themselves
- relieving unbearable tension
- a cry for help
- a response to intrusive thoughts

There is a clear link between suicide or suicidal thoughts and people who have previously self-harmed.

However, not everyone who self-harms wants to end their life. Some people describe their self-harm as a way of staying alive by responding to or coping with severe emotional distress.

It's important to find the right support to help deal with the underlying cause in a less harmful way. Contact HARMLESS

BEREAVEMENT SUPPORT FOR CHILDREN AND YOUNG PEOPLE

Laura

Nothing can take away the pain when someone close to you dies.

Sometimes it may be someone else's idea for you to meet with a counsellor and you may not know until you have met with them whether you want to meet with them again.

When you meet with a counsellor you can go on your own for the first time or have a parent/carer or someone special to go with you.

Some people find it hard to talk and find it helpful to do other things like play games, draw, make stuff, use puppets or make things with Lego or just be quiet. You decide how much you feel like talking and what about.

Website: <https://thelauracentre.org.uk/>

Sometimes there will be groups for children and young people to meet each other and to share what it feels like when someone close to them has died.

Sometimes it helps to be part of a group and helps you to understand that your situation is not unique and you are not alone.

Remember you are not alone all you have to do is reach out!

TOP TIPS FOR PARENTS/CARERS LOOKING AFTER A CHILD/YOUNG PERSON'S MENTAL HEALTH

EVERY MIND MATTERS

<https://www.nhs.uk/oneyou/every-mind-matters/childrens-mental-health/>

There are times when we all feel the strain. As parents and carers, there are ways we can support children and young people to give them the best chance to stay mentally healthy.

Be there to listen

Regularly ask how they're doing so they get used to talking about their feelings and know there's always someone to listen if they want it. Find out how to create a space where they will open up.

How to start a conversation with your child

Support them through difficulties

Pay attention to their emotions and behaviour, and try to help them work through difficulties. It's not always easy when faced with challenging behaviour, but try to help them understand what they're feeling and why.

Help with difficult behaviour and emotions

Stay involved in their life

Show interest in their life and the things important to them. It not only helps them value who they are but also makes it easier for you to spot problems and support them.

Encourage their interests

Being active or creative, learning new things and being a part of a team help connect us with others and are important ways we can all help our mental health. Support and encourage them to explore their interests, whatever they are.

Take what they say seriously

Listening to and valuing what they say, without judging their feelings, in turn makes them feel valued. Consider how to help them process and work through their emotions in a more constructive way.

The Anna Freud Centre support guide

Build positive routines

We know it still may not be easy, but try to reintroduce structure around regular routines, healthy eating and exercise. A good night's sleep is also really important – try to get them back into routines that fit with school or college.
